- (h) You must obey the code of conduct.
- (i) Do not talk about fight club.
- (j) You may not attempt to commune with extraterrestrials with a homemade beacon or device of similar nature.
- (k) You may not try and capture the feeling one would have when taking a brisk walk with their significant other down a beach path on a sunny afternoon around 4-5pm with minimal clouds, while having a deep and interesting conversation about life with some light inside jokes sprinkled in to keep spirits high, and as you walk you pass an elderly couple walking their dog (which just so happens to be your favourite breed of dog) they let you pet this dog and tell you its name and all the funny things it's done this week and then as you continue walking you and your partner talk about what kind of pets you would want to get in the future when you eventually move in together, however you both know this is futile cause despite best efforts the economy and housing markets are only getting worse and as world tensions rise you are scared you won't get to spend the last parts of your life safe and sound, but if you can spend them together you can at least be happy at the end of the world, in a painting.
- (l) Please don't break a finger.
- (m) Do not throw a microwave at an opponent regardless of your feelings.
- (n) You must read the code of conduct thoroughly.
- (o) You cannot rub your tummy and pat your head, it's really hard.
